From "The Alps," illustrated by A. D. McCormick (A. & C. Black.)

The Dent Blanche (14 318 feet) is one of the Pennine Alps. The first ascent is attributed to T. S. Kennedy, W. Wigram, and the guide, J. B. Croz, in 1862. It is considered the hardest of all the Zermatt peaks. The Riffelberg is a slope immediately overlooking Zermatt. It is regarded as the finest viewpoint in the Alps.
